#TheMatchGame

Play and WIN! Each contestant will receive a $50 gift card from ALE - Amberwood Lounge and Eatery.

Win it all for the GRAND PRIZE: ALE will MATCH your Wedding Budget! *

Courtesy of

HOW TO PLAY

During the game, the wedding couple sit back-to-back, unable to see each other. They take off their shoes and give one of their shoes to the other. Using the shoes as a paddle, couples signify their answers to the match questions.

IE: Who is most likely to leave the toothpaste cap off? Lift the appropriate shoe & turn around to see if you get a match! :)

Prize Details: *The Grand Prize is for 50% of the minimum basic package at a value of $3250, as well as an optional additional $1750 in add-ons. This prize allows for a maximum matching amount (and prize value) of $5000. The $1750 in add-ons MUST be spent on in-house additions to food and beverage, including, but not limited to, the following possibilities: A welcome cocktail per guest, toasting bubbly per guest, circulated canapes, upgrades to a four or five course meal, premium late night food package, upgrades for dinner wine, cash bar etc. Your $5000 wedding just became a $10,000 wedding!

Play "Measure Up!" with Radiant Body Sculpting and you could WIN 9 Zerona laser fat loss treatments for you and 9 for your fiance!

Total prize value is more than $2500!

Answer three questions about each other - and see if you measure up! Players will each write their answers on a whiteboard and see if they are the same.

Those who play Measure Up will receive 5 ballots for entry – those who choose not to play may still enter the prize draw at The Reception Room, with a single ballot entry.

Recycling, Reusing, Repurposing After Your Wedding

By Patricia Wilson, Karma Creative Solutions

Your wedding cost too much money for you to throw or stash things away when it's over. There's more use left in that food, those flowers and your wedding gown.

Food has to be preserved in special ways in order to be donated to shelters, food pantries, Ronald McDonald houses and other similar charities. Perhaps a family in your area that's having trouble making ends meet could use the left-over food. It's important to either make your wishes to donate known to your caterer so they can research the correct preservation methods or that you select a caterer who specializes in donating food after weddings. You should also know which foods can and cannot be donated so you can add more of the acceptable foods to your wedding menu.

There's no doubt you'll have wall-to-wall flowers. What a shame it would be to toss them into the dumpster. Many couples can make arrangements to donate their floral décor to hospitals and nursing homes so as to provide happiness to the sick and elderly. Your florist may be able to provide the name of an organization in your area that will help you with your floral donation.

Last but not least, there's your wedding dress. Instead of preserving it for a future generation that may not use it, there are many other uses for it. Give it to a local charity that will auction it off and donate the proceeds to breast cancer research. If you really want to keep it, dye it and wear it on special occasions, have a christening gown made out of it for your child or use the skirt to adorn the outside of your baby's bassinet.

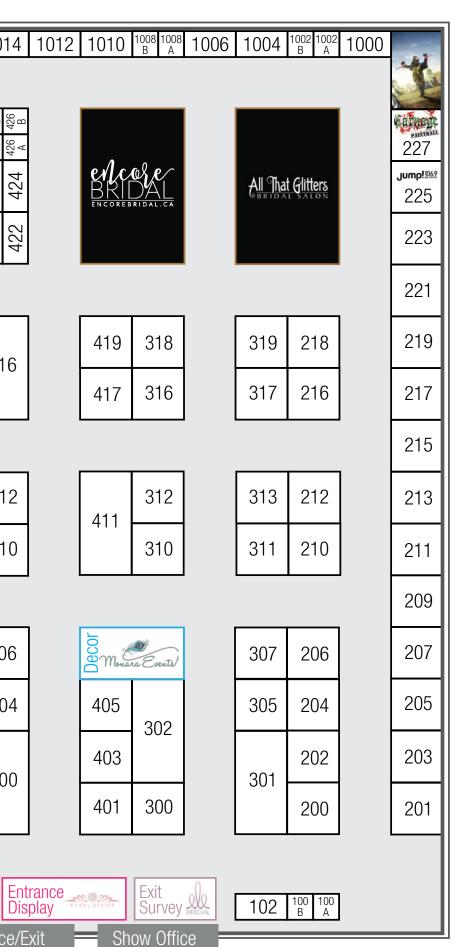

Items from your cherished day belong neither in a dumpster nor a in storage box. The happiness will last much longer when you recycle, reuse or repurpose them.

Livestream Your Wedding

By Patricia Wilson, Karma Creative Solutions

In the past, friends and family who were unable to attend weddings had to settle for looking at pictures and watching videos during future visits with the happy couple. With today's technology, however, livestreaming weddings allows those who are unable to put life on hold for travel to attend the wedding virtually. This is also a great idea if the bride and groom are the ones who live out of town and don't want to trade their honeymoon travel time to travel back home to have their wedding.

An internet search will populate numerous websites that provide this popular new nuptial service. Livestreaming companies are able to livestream weddings from a location of your choice. It's important for you to know, however, that many of these businesses operate only within a certain range of their home office. If one isn't available near you, having your wedding in a nearby chapel that provides livestreaming services might be an alternative you could consider.

Prices vary depending on the company providing the service, travel distance and your selected amenities. Most wedding broadcast packages begin at $1500 for two hours of coverage.

Broadcasting live weddings isn't all livestreaming websites offer. They'll also livestream the reception if you'd like, provide live chatrooms, online guestbooks, internet connection for remote or outdoor weddings, links to gift registries, photo galleries, a personal broadcast page and more.

Of course, if you don't need the professional extras or can't find a livestreaming professional or chapel in your area, you can DIY livestream to sites such as Google Hangouts, Facebook, YouTube, Twitter or Skype for little to no money if you have a friend who can operate a tablet or mobile device.

Whether professionally or DIY, there are many ways to livestream your wedding so no one will have to miss your special day. So, go ahead! Invite everyone you know.
